“We are aware of the financial and emotional strain this event has had on many families in our community” said Bruce Miller, general manager of the Swift Hyrum / E.A. Miller beef production facility. “We are committed to helping people through this very difficult time and hope this donation will aid in the delivery of services and support to those affected by the events of December 12th.”

“This is a human issue not an immigration issue,” said Mary Prudent, executive director, United Way of Cache Valley. “People are suffering and United Way is here to help them. With this donation, Swift has made it possible to help the families.”
